

YOUTH SINGERS SCHOOL

What role do the performing arts play in building identity and community?

How can I express ideas, stories and feelings in an artistic way through the performing arts?

Why are diverse skills and perspectives valuable?

How do the performing arts bring people together?

How does the process of artistic creation lead to self-discovery?

As a Campus Calgary site, Youth Singers School is committed to providing hands-on personalized learning experiences in our community setting. A week at Youth Singers School invites students and teachers to connect and learn with the experienced and passionate Youth Singers of Calgary (YSC) staff in this youth-centred performing arts space.

Youth Singers School will look different for each participating class depending on their learning focus. All teachers and students will engage in hands-on, authentic performing arts experiences and make sense of these experiences through activities, reflection and journaling. Participants of Youth Singers School will learn and collaborate with various professionals and volunteers of their choice while in attendance. These experts may include:

- Choral directors
- Choreographers
- Theatre directors
- Musicians
- Lighting designers
- Sound technicians
- Costume designers
- Set and prop creators
- Graphic designers
- Cultural community leaders

Our ATCO Performing Arts (APAC) is a well-organized, safe space with multiple entry points for inquiry. The space offers much to Youth Singers School learners and teachers, including four performance studios, a recording studio, a music library, costume and set building workshops, and much more. Participants of Youth Singers School will be encouraged explore and interact with areas of APAC in ways that deepen their understanding.

Youth Singers School experiences will be uniquely designed to best meet the needs of students while utilizing all the resources this location and our team has to offer.
